FIRST AID SCHOOL TO BEGIN MONDAY

Red Cross To Sponsor School

A Red Cross First Aid Course will be offered to interested persons in Cameron and Milam County, according to Mrs. Grady Stidham.

The classes will be held at the Yoe High School Gymnasium and will begin Monday April 23. The hours are from 6 to 9 P. M. and classes will be held each Monday at this time for six consecutive weeks.

Miss Dallye Young will direct the course which is planned under the volunteer service department of the Red Cross and is especially valuable at the same time as well as essential in preparing workers to take their places in the disaster program being organized over the counties, states and the entire nation by the government and the Red Cross.

A number of the committees designated by the disaster setup require personnel with first aid training and leaders point out that this type of training is of great value and benefit in case of any accident or emergency and people should make special effort to enroll in the school.

Mrs. Stidham who has been an outstanding worker in the volunteer Red Cross Program in the county was instrumental in arranging for this training course to be held and Mrs. Agnes Lowe, secretary of the county chapter has written to national headquarters for additional information and instructions concerning the course.

It is hoped that every community in the entire county will be represented at the training school and take active part in the work to be carried out during this six week period.

These courses have been held in the past and a large number of persons in the county have received instruction certificates and are looking forward to participate in the advanced courses. The date of the advanced class has not yet been announced.

LEGIONS TO HOLD MASS MEETINGS

Survey Reported Underway In Milam

A large number of citizens from the rural areas and communities surrounding Cameron met with Members of the Chamber of Commerce, the City Council and other interested civic personnel of the city at the County Court Room Monday night.

The purpose of the meeting was to discuss the rural telephone situation with representatives of the Southwestern Bell Telephone who had been invited to meet with the group by Valter White, chairman of the farm telephone committee, recently organized to look into the matter of the extension of rural telephone service in the county.

After a number of discussions concerning the matter by Mr. White Mayor A. N. Green, Albert Collins, director of the Chamber of Commerce, L. G. Smith, manager, John C. Andres and other interested persons the group decided to give Southwestern Bell until May 12 to begin satisfactory work on the project and if this is not done, the committee will seek other channels by which to get rural telephone service.

Mayor Green assured the group that he and the City Council would do all within their power to assist in this activity. The group appreciated Mr. Green's interest and thanked him for meeting with the group. A number of the same group recently appeared before the City Council asking that the council bear pressure on the Southwestern Bell Telephone Company to continue construction of rural lines out of Cameron, to carry out their verbal agreement with the city when the company was granted increased rates in October 1948.

Mr. Collins told the group that the Chamber would go right along with the farmers and give them their support in getting this construction underway as soon as possible. Gene Blake, also a director of the Chamber told the rural citizens that every effort would be put forth by the chamber relative to this situation as the chamber is made of Cameron businessmen and the merchants of the town are vitally interested in seeing that the rural citizens get telephone service soon.

L. G. Smith told the group that I. W. Davis, district manager of telephone company, telephoned L. Van Perkins, member of the board of directors of the chamber and also a member of the city council, last Tuesday night April 10, that the company would have a crew in Cameron on Wednesday April 11, to begin work. It was reported at the meeting that some representatives of the telephone company had been out in some of the communities making surveys as to how many subscribers in that particular community would be interested in telephone service.

It appeared that the group at the meeting was displeased over the fact that representatives of the company did not show up for the meeting since they were expecting a definite statement from the company regarding the extension of rural service.

It was understood that if Southwestern Bell did not make a constructive move and continue work until the construction job was completed that rural citizens might join in with the cooperative system in Bell County.

Mrs. Coy Perry Buried At Temple

Funeral services for Mrs. Coy C. Perry, 42, were held at the Battetown Baptist Church at 3:30 P. M. Monday, April 16 with Rev. Bob Walker, pastor officiating, assisted by Rev. Bill Mahaney, former pastor of the church.

Mrs. Perry died Saturday afternoon. (Turn To Page Ten)

Marine Private First Class Theo. F. Aschenbeck, son of Theo Aschenbeck, Cameron recently completed his initial training at the Marine Corps Recruit Depot, Can Diego, Calif.

Upon completion of his training he was promoted to the rank of Private First Class, an honor bestowed upon every Marine who finishes his training with a clean record.

Mrs. A. M. Goldstein, secretary of the Waco Association telephoned Mrs. Swift Monday April 16 and extended music lovers of this city and county a cordial invitation to become members of the Waco Association this year.

Since there is no active work being done in the local association, friends in the neighboring city are offering this to those interested in civic music in the county.

There are six concerts scheduled for the coming year and the first will be held this coming Friday night April 20 at Waco Hall at 8:15 when Luboshutz and Nemenoff, the world's greatest two-piano team will be presented. ### Rep. Poage Defends President's Action

President Truman had the choice of either firing General MacArthur or abandoning the power and responsibility vested in him as President by the Constitution of the United States and bowing to MacArthur's will, Congressman W. R. Poage said in a letter received in the office of J. C. Herring, Waco real estate dealer.

Poage said that if Truman had given way to MacArthur we would have repudiated a cardinal principle of democratic government. And once this is done, he said, Democracy is destroyed.

The Congressman said that if we are to maintain the supremacy of civil government in this country, the President, not some professional military man must be the supreme commander.

He said that MacArthur not only repeatedly disagreed with the decisions of his superior officer and ignored the commands given him, but apparently went out of his way to show his disagreement in the most dramatic fashion.

Poage said he doesn't know whether the General expected Truman to abdicate his own position or to fire MacArthur.

"It is unfortunate that the test between civil and military control should be made under circumstances where many people will judge it, not on the merits of the principles of government involved, of the individuals involved. No matter what the provocation of the immediate situation may be, it seems to be of primary importance that we preserve the principles of democratic government. When once this principle (of civilian control) is repudiated, Democracy is destroyed," Poage said.

He said he agrees with MacArthur's views about what should be done in the Far East.

State Commander Calls For Action

The American Legion Edwin Hardy Post No. 9 is having a mass meeting Friday night April 20 to discuss the firing of General Douglas MacArthur, it was announced by Joe O'Neill, commander.

Mass meetings of this kind are being held in 800 Texas Communities to discuss the president's action and were ordered by State Commander Bill Elkins of the American Legion who also called in the department executives committee, the department foreign relations committee and the department defense committee for a meeting in Austin Sunday April 22.

Bombarded by telephone calls and telegrams from all sections of the state, Commander Elkins declared "This is too momentous a question for the Legion to take snap judgment on."

Some of the Legionnaires defended MacArthur and others were equally vocal in defense of President Truman as commander in chief.

"Legionnaires are all veterans. We are not dodging or pussyfooting. I believe any half-baked half coked action by me, as commander, would not represent the 100,000 Texas Legionnaires. In a few days we can all look at the matter in a proper perspective. That's why I am urging every Texas Post commander to call a mass meeting at once, thrash out the matter, and through their division and district commanders bring their sentiments to Austin. Then we can all get together, let our hair down and come to a sensible agreement."

Interested non-Legionnaires as well as all Legionnaires from across the state are invited to attend the meeting of the State Legion governing body Elkins said in his statement.

The following statement and questions will be asked at the meeting:

TO: POST COMMANDERS

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

Your attention is called to the attached news release issued by this office on Wednesday, April 11, 1951.

The time has come when The American Legion of Texas should establish a well-defined policy on foreign affairs. Policies of the American Legion emanate from the Posts. I, therefore, request that you immediately call a mass meeting of the Legionnaires and veterans in your community and discuss the foreign situation thoroughly.

Should the United States continue a delaying war confined to Korea only?

Should we blockade the China Coast with our Navy?

Should we furnish equipment to Chiang Kai-shek for an invasion on the Mainland of China?

Should we bomb Manchurian bases? Do we believe in the foreign policy as outlined by General MacArthur or do we believe in the foreign policy as outlined by the President in his radio broadcast, April 11?

The opinions of all Posts on these questions should be submitted to Department Headquarters, or to your District Commander, prior to April 21, 1951. I will present to the Department Executive Committee the question of foreign relations as it affects the United States. Your observations and comments will be transmitted to the Executive Committee.

The American Legion, being a cross-section of the American Public, should be the barometer of public opinion in the United States.

Now is the time to make our decision.

May I have your usual fine cooperation.

Yours very truly,
Bill Elkins
Department Commander.

Turkeys Will Keep Down Grasshoppers

Cotton planting began in a number of communities this week it was reported by several farmers in different areas of the county.

Since the greatly needed rainfall during the month of March, farmers have been busy planting corn and making preparations to begin cotton planting. Several farmers have said that they have planted large acreage of corn and with the scarcity of that product, the price might be very good next fall during the harvest season. Milam County is known for producing some of the best corn in the state as well as the most bushels per acre.

Some of the farmers who seek to harvest the first bale of the season have already planted some cotton. This crop still maintains its leadership as being the No. 1 source of income in the county and has held that supremacy for many decades, even though other farm activities have ranged high in the income bracket.

Feed crops such as hegaria, sudan, maize, sorghum and others will be planted within the next month or six weeks. The recent rainfall has been very beneficial to the range areas as it has brought on the clover and other natural grasses that are vital for grazing cattle.

Reports have come from certain areas of the county that grasshoppers are beginning to hatch and from statistics that A & M College have released there is a tremendous amount of grasshopper eggs this spring which if good warm weather prevails, the hopper damage might be heavy in Milam County this year.

A number of farmers over the county have already purchased large numbers of turkey poult to help fight the outbreak of grasshoppers on their farms and have indicated that the turkeys do a good job of eating out the hoppers and the expense of feed and insecticides are cut to a minimum on account of the turkeys feasting on the hoppers, and through the turkey program, sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce, many farmers are engaged in turkey production.

Farmers over the county have learned that diversified farming has paid off to a great extent in recent years and have become educated to many and various ways and means of cutting down overhead cost on farming procedures.

With the planting season off to a good start, farm activity will soon get into full swing and if insect infestation is not heavy this year, and the county gets adequate rainfall prospects for a good crop this year is expected.

Farmers over the county who planted tomatoes in March have had to replant several times due to the weather during the past several weeks. However, some of the tomatoes are showing marked improvement in the last few days. Some farmers market some of their tomatoes as early as the middle of May some years. Farmers are always enthusiastic over getting the produce to the local market as soon as possible, in order that they might receive top prices for their produce.

PMA Officials To Head Committees

Agricultural Mobilization Committees are now being organized in each agricultural county in the nation. Members of these committees will include county PMA committeemen, officials of the Department of Agricultural agencies in the county, and, of they desire to join, the county agricultural agents and vocational agricultural teachers. The county PMA committee chairman will lead the committees.

The committees will be expected to notify the Department of Agriculture of any development of shortages that might hinder the expanded farm production program such as shortages of labor, fertilizers, insecticides and farm machinery. They will assist the Department in channeling imported workers to the farms that need them most and will advise the local Selective Service Boards on essential farm workers.

When and if fertilizers, insecticides and farm machinery become scarce to the point where the supplies will not go around, the committees will have to work out some system of sharing the scarcity.

Farmers are advised to work with these committees and keep them posted on any shortages or other production problems.

San Francisco Gives Exciting Welcome

SAN FRANCISCO, April 17—Gen. Douglas MacArthur arrived home to a riotous welcome that almost became a mob scene when he stepped from his plane, the Bataan.

Spectators, newsmen and photographers broke through greeting lines and swarmed around the General in a tumultuous welcome that almost swamped the ceremonies at the airport.

MacArthur's plane bringing him home for the first time in 14 years touched the runway at 10:29 p. m. after a flight of eight hours, 59 minutes from Hawaii.

With deep feeling, MacArthur told the airport crowd of nearly 10,000:

"I cannot tell you how good it is to be home. In these long, long dreary years, Mrs. MacArthur and I talked and thought about home. We appreciate your marvelous hospitality and this great reception. We will not forget it."

The crowd crushed around the MacArthurs as soon as they came down the ramp of the plane, and the General stepped on the soil of his homeland.

He wore his familiar gold-braided cap and a trench coat buttoned high around his neck. Mrs. MacArthur wore a purple dress and young Arthur wore a maroon jacket with fur collar.

MacArthur's review of the honor guard was virtually a running mob scene. Guns boomed a 17 gun salute.

Officers and friends formed a tight circle around Mrs. MacArthur and young Arthur to keep them from being crushed. Lieut. Col. Anthony Story, MacArthur's pilot, held Arthur in his arms to shield the wide-eyed boy.

It was the first time in 14 years MacArthur had been in continental United States.

Research On Polio Serum Continues; Reports Encouraging

March of Dimes research aimed at developing a preventive for infantile paralysis is well ahead of schedule, but a final answer cannot be expected for at least several years.

This was reported Wednesday, April 18 by L. G. Baker, District campaign director of Waco, who has just returned from a planning meeting in New York City at which the research program of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis was reviewed by the organization's medical department.

"Recent progress in polio research is most encouraging," said Mr. Baker "but a protective vaccine or serum isn't just around the corner. The problem is much more complicated than people realize. Scientists have reached the point where there is reason to believe an answer is in sight, but it is a long step from experimental work on animals to application of a protective serum, vaccine or drug to human beings."

Scientific studies sponsored by March of Dimes funds have demonstrated that the mechanism of immunity works in polio as in other infectious diseases, it was said at the meeting, but human trials still have to be undertaken to determine proper and safe dosages of vaccine or serum and the period of effectiveness, if any.

Now, at the end of two years, we know that these 100 samples all fall into three types, clinically just alike, but immunity to one does not confer immunity to the others. A vaccine, to be useful, would have to protect against all types of polio. By the end of 1951, more than 300 strains will have been classified at a cost much less than was anticipated."

Experimental work has been greatly speeded and its cost reduced by the discovery that polio virus can be grown in test tubes, using non-nervous tissue, it was reported. This has provided a tool not only for work leading to a preventive but opens the door for a possible diagnostic test. One of the problems in providing prompt treatment for patients has been the lack of a simple, quick test to determine the presence of the disease before paralysis occurs.

North Ft. Hood Is Readied For Troops

North Fort Hood, ghost town since 1945, is coming to life again. Overcrowded conditions due to the great influx of personnel for the newly re-activated First Armored Division, have forced the re-birth of facilities in this long-vacant area. For the past five weeks more than 300 workmen have been feverishly attacking the giant task of preparing the "deserted village" for its imminent occupants. This job is scheduled to be completed by the first of May.

With the exception of a few of the larger structures, all buildings at North Fort Hood were dismantled in 1948. Occasionally the area has been used for National Guard and other temporary training; otherwise it has been vacant.

Now, flat concrete slabs, supporting wooden framework over which canvas tents will be placed, have been constructed in endless rows. Each of these new troop units will house 16 men.

Nearby, mess halls are being constructed on a similar plan. Tented dining rooms are attached to small, new, permanent-type kitchens. Each of these mess halls will handle 150 men.

Cadre for the units within these commands will move to their new area during the middle of this month. They will be assigned quarters and prepare to receive their filler troops, who are scheduled to arrive at Hood before the first of May.

Aileen Jistel of Temple is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Clark here a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. Clint Pierce of Hanover visited friends in Cameron Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Brown and Charlene of Brady were in Cameron for the week end and were visitors in the home of Mrs. Brown's mother, Mrs. Cage Terry. Mr. and Mrs. Brown had been to Phoenix, Arizona and stopped in Cameron on their way to Brady. They have many friends here who welcome their visits. Mr. Brown has a position as car salesman for Ustard Motor Sales at Brady and is enjoying his work very much.

Operational Agreement Reaffirmed Between NFIP and Warm Springs On Polio Patient Care

Reaffirmation of the operational agreement between National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis and the Gonzales Warm Spring Foundation concerning polio patient care was announced here this week.

Representatives of both organizations conferred at Gonzales to discuss joint policies, particularly as concerns costs to NFIP chapters in Texas on a reimbursable cost basis for polio patients treated at Gonzales at chapter expense, and also dates for separate fund raising activities.

Warren Kingsbury, regional NFIP director, said:

"We had a harmonious discussion and renewed agreements affecting smooth functioning of both the National Foundation, which spearheads the over all fight against polio in Texas and the Gonzales Foundation which is expanding its facilities and therefore is helping to rehabilitate an increasing number of polio cases each year."

Speaking for the Gonzales Foundation, Ross Boothe, president said:

"Polio patient care for past acute cases has become a major phase of our hospitalization program. As our facilities are increased, we will be able to extend our full program of treatment to even more polio cases, along with the general crippled children case load."

271 Men In Class 1-A At Local Board

Milam County Local Draft Board No. 92 reports the interesting fact that on April 29, 1950 the total registration in Milam County was 1,721 men born since August 30, 1922 down to the 18 year olds. On April 8, 1951 the total registration was 1,963. This means that 242 young men have attained the age of 18 years and have been required to register in Milam County during the year.

The total number of men inducted from Milam County since the beginning of the 1948 act is 73. These have all been inducted into the Army, since the other branches of the Armed Forces have not found it necessary to request draftees. The total number of men in Milam County examined and accepted but not yet inducted, is 71. ## Notify Social Security Office If You Answer 'Yes' To These Questions

Lost your social security card?
Changed your name since you got your card?
Is your card worn out?
Do you have more than one number?

A "yes" answer to any of these questions may mean loss of wage credits unless you notify your nearest social security office or the personnel office.

Your name on the payroll should be the same as the one on your social security card. If your name has changed since you got your card simply fill out a "Request for Change in Records" form. You can get this form at the social security office or from the personnel office. A new card will be furnished free. It will show your correct name with your original number.

If your card has been lost or worn out mail the stub to the social security office and a duplicate card will be sent you. If you don't have the stub, you can still get a new card by just filling out an application.

Don't ask for more than one number. If you should have more than one number, you might have trouble getting all of the social security benefit payments that will be due to you and your family when you retire at or after age 65. Moreover, your dependent survivors might have trouble getting all of their payments in case of your death.

If you have more than one account number get in touch with your social security office and they will put all your wage credits in one account.

New Enemy Tactics Hamper Fliers

(From the Daily)
TOKYO, Monday, April 16—United Nations forces stabbed forward for limited gains Sunday against Chinese Communists who used a vast pall of smoke to blanket their slow withdrawal along the Korean battlefield. Although Communist artillery and mortar barrages rocked the battle lines, particularly in the west, the U. S. 8th Army announced it had detected a general lessening of Red resistance.

Chinese and North Korean rear guards fought bitterly to block an Allied three-way drive on the battered enemy road hub and supply town of Chorwon, 17 miles north of the 38th Parallel. Storming allied troops found the hills littered with enemy dead as the result of United Nations artillery barrages.

U. N. forces also jammed a solid line along most of the southern banks of the 15-mile long Hwachon reservoir on the central front. Delayed dispatches told how the Reds bloodily repulsed an Allied landing attempt in small boats Wednesday.

The Reds still held out on the Eastern end of the reservoir where U. N. and South Korean troops rolled to the gates of Yanggu, seven miles north of the parallel, and seized commanding ridges under the light of flares.

South Korean troops beat off a Red counterattack in craggy ridges northwest of Imje and 10 miles south-east of Tanggu, on a main road leading to the East Coast.

The smoke pall apparently was a new stratagem from Red commanders to hamper aerial support for the Allied advance north of the 38th Parallel, and to shroud preparations for a massive Communist counter blow.

Local Scouts To Erect Theatre

If disaster should strike this city in the form of fire, explosion, or atomic blast, the Boy Scouts will know how to assist other agencies officially charged with coming to the relief of civilians in such an emergency.

Sixteen Scout Units from the nine counties embodied in the Heart O' Texas Council will demonstrate that fact when they erect a complete downtown section, destroy it in a graphic simulation of a major disaster and then set up rescue and first aid operations as one of the features of the giant Boy Scout Circus in Waco's Municipal Stadium the night of April 27.

The 16 Troops and Explorer Posts, comprising only a small part of the 4,000 boys and leaders who will take part in the Circus, have been busy constructing and painting building fronts in such a way that they can be set across the entire length of the stadium in only two minutes. At the end of that brief period, the stadium will be blacked out and the din of explosions, the shrieking of sirens and the cries of the injured will proclaim the arrival of disaster. Then the lights will shine again on a ruined city and Scouts from the same Units which built the city will administer first aid, make live wire and fire rescues, set up an emergency feeding station and perform other similar services.

Troops 9 and 131 and Explorer Post 9 in McGregor are building a hardware store, a bakery and a photo shop; Troops 31 and 57 in Marlin will set up an office building and a jewelry; Prairie Hill's Troop 68 will erect a five and ten cent store; Troop 70 in Mexia is in charge of a shoe shop; Gatesville Troop 72 is constructing a bank building; Troop 83 in Cameron is erecting a Theatre; the Valley Mills Explorer Post 82 will set up a postoffice; Troop 112 in Belton will erect a department store; Troops 8, 11 and 12 in Waco will put up drug stores and a grocery. In the center of the field, Explorer Post 51 in Rosebud will erect a cafe, in front of which it will set up and operate an emergency feeding station at which boys from each of the other Units will line up for food during relief operations.

The entire act, building, destroying and relief work will consume only 10 minutes.

Other features of the 12-event show will be a "melting pot" in which Scouts are made of boys of all nationalities and social strata; a demonstration by 900 Cub Scouts; use of The Neckerchief; Scouting Games, Camps, Communications, demonstrations and Pioneering.

George Sauer, football coach at Baylor University, is director of the program. P. G. Knudson of Waco is Chairman of the Circus.

Why not give your Pride a break!

Let's see what it means to own a ROADMASTER. It means, first of all, that you're a shrewd judge of fine manufacture. Nowhere will you find a mechanism more skilfully fitted part to part with scrupulous precision—engineered to stricter standards of fine-car quality—than the deep-framed and durable ROADMASTER chassis.

It means, also, that you possess keen appreciation of everything that makes for unsurpassed performance.

For there's more to this dazzling beauty than its thrilling take-off. There's the surplus of power that you need to make you the master of busy traffic or open road—plus the velvet magic of Dynaflo Drive (at no extra cost, mind you).

There's the level-going luxury of ample roadweight buoyantly balanced on coil springs on every wheel—and the security of brakes specifically engineered for firm control of this great-powered beauty.

Tune in HENRY J. TAYLOR, ABC Network, every Monday evening.

But there's still another distinction to being a ROADMASTER owner.

It marks you as one who buys wisely and well. Size for size, pound for pound, feature for feature, few cars can even approach what your dollars will buy in this finest of Buicks.

There's much more to be discovered by a visit to any Buick dealer's showroom.

There's the sumptuous softness of cushions, the custom excellence of fabrics and interior trim, the grace and charm of every line and contour.

So if you've dreamed of sometime owning a car superbly fine, there's no time like the present—and no car like ROADMASTER for making dreams come true.

Ever Sprint a Footrace With a Tornado?—Here's How

STILLWATER, Okla.—The next time you see a tornado bearing down on you, don't grow pale and collapse. Instead, start running.

Chances are good that you can outrun it, says William E. Hardy, Oklahoma A. & M. College meteorologist.

"Don't run away from it; run at right angles to it," Hardy advises. "A twister ordinarily is only a few hundred feet wide. If you can get as much as six hundred feet from a tornado, you are probably safe."

Avoid Shacks

Hardy also suggests staying out of small or weak wooden shacks or sheds during a tornado.

"You stand a better chance out in the open, providing you can find a depression of some kind to lie in," he said, "Remember, it isn't the tornado itself that does the most harm. It's the flying debris, often traveling two to three hundred miles an hour, that causes the most damage."

Staying down below ground level, and away from barns or buildings that might collapse, increases chances of survival. Hardy also suggests that cars be abandoned in favor of the wide open spaces.

Stay Out of Cars

Cars are comparatively light to a twister, and are liable to be smashed up. The best thing to do is to drive out of the path of the storm, but if that cannot be done, drive the car under a strong overhead structure if possible and get out and into a gully, culvert, or depression of some kind.

Contrary to popular belief, the cellar of a house is not the best place to go during a tornado, the meteorologist declares. If the twister hits the house, it will likely deposit everything inside right in the lap of anyone in the cellar.

Little Warning

There is no sure way to tell when a tornado is coming, Hardy says. The weather-signs closely resemble those of a bad thunderstorm, and any thunderstorm can turn into a twister if conditions are right.

"Constant work is being done to perfect a method of tracking and forewarning an area of a tornado, the meteorologist states.

Experiments are being conducted at all times to establish a working plan whereby residents of tornadic area can be assured of a reasonable preparation period before a twister hits."

New History Volume

New Mexico Area Now Chili Bowl

LUNA COUNTY, N.M. — This section of New Mexico is rapidly acquiring a new title—'Chili Bowl of the Southwest.'

It all started during the first days of government cotton control when a few farmers, casting about for some way to use idle land, took a gamble and began planting the hot red peppers which have such a varied use in native dishes.

Now, in communities where only a handful of farmers formerly raised the chilis for their own use, lots of people are raising them on a commercial scale—and doing right well with them.

Just as an example—one farmer, F. C. Lopez, planted five acres and although a late frost damaged the first blooms he harvested 13,500 pounds and 1,200 pounds of red, for a total sales value of $1,042.

From a commercial standpoint Luna County growers have learned that it is not profitable to raise chilis in small quantities because of the lack of available markets in the section, but as County Extension Agent Seldon Baker has pointed out the demand for chili peppers is steadily growing as they are used by more and more Easterners.

As a result the Luna County Farm Cooperative was started so that farmers would be assured of a market after harvesting their crops.

This section of New Mexico is particularly adaptable to growing the plants. It has a 220-day growing season and, although rainfall is usually less than 10 inches annually, there is plenty of underground water than can be tapped for irrigation purposes.

Texas Historians To Get Together

AUSTIN, Texas—The Texas State Historical Association, with headquarters at the University of Texas, will hold its annual meeting here April 27-28. Director H. Bailey Carroll has announced.

The program will include several talks on historical topics, two luncheons, a dinner and a business meeting. An auction of Texas books, contributed by Association members, will highlight one session.

At the dinner, Dr. Harry Ransom, University of Texas English professor, will speak on "Satan and Science in Early Texas," the story of an early-day Texas doctor.

Thomas W. Streeter, American Bibliographical Society president, New York, will give a talk on Texas Bibliography, 1795-1845.

Robert C. Cotner, University history faculty, will discuss James Stephen Hogg at a luncheon meeting. Cotner is now editing papers and letters of Former Governor Hogg for publication.

CAN'T HAPPEN, BUT IT DID—Science says that the hybrid mule can not become a mama, but this mule—down on the Will Rutledge ranch in the South Texas brush country—hadn't been reading any scientific journals. This mule's mother instinct became so pronounced that she adopted a young Braham calf, chased away the calf's cow mother and established a cafeteria of her own to feed her foster child, which grew fat on the strange diet. They ranged together for months before ranch hands succeeded in capturing the pair.

Apple Dishes Easy to Fix

Apple John is the homey, old-fashioned name of today's tempting, crunchy apple dessert. It may be served hot or cold, plain or topped with cream or whipped cream and is equally appropriate for luncheon or dinner. Easy on the budget, too, while local markets are featuring economy prices on choice quality fruit like the crisp, spicy red Winesap apples which hold their distinctive flavor and texture especially well under cooking processes.

APPLE JOHN (Serves 8)

10 red Winesap apples, 1 cup light corn syrup, ½ cup butter or margarine, 1 cup brown sugar, ½ cup flour, 1 tsp. salt, 2 cups rolled oats, ½ cup chopped walnuts.

Wash apples but do not peel. Core and quarter. Place chopped apples in large greased casserole and pour sirup over apples. Cream together butter or margarine and brown sugar until smooth. Stir in flour, rolled oats and nuts. Sprinkle mixture over apples and bake in moderate (350 degrees F) oven for 1 hour.

And here are a couple more apple recipes that are easy to fix:

BACON 'N APPLE — Festive fare for breakfast or brunch are crisp bacon slices served with tender, juicy apple wedges, simmered in butter and sugar. To prepare, wash five unpeeled red Washington State Winesap apples. Cut into wedges. Melt one tbsp. butter in heavy sauce pan. Place apples in butter. Add ½ cup water and ¼ cup sugar, cover and cook gently 3 to 5 minutes. Remove cover and cook about 20 minutes or until sirup thickens. Do not stir.

CARTWHEEL SALAD. A salad that sings of spring is made by coring rosy red Winesap apples and cutting into quarter inch rings. Top each apple ring with a slice of golden pineapple and crown with fluffy cream cheese.

Reducers—Avoid The Combinations

Reducers should keep in mind that no one food is fattening. You gain weight when you eat more than your body needs, no matter what foods are eaten.

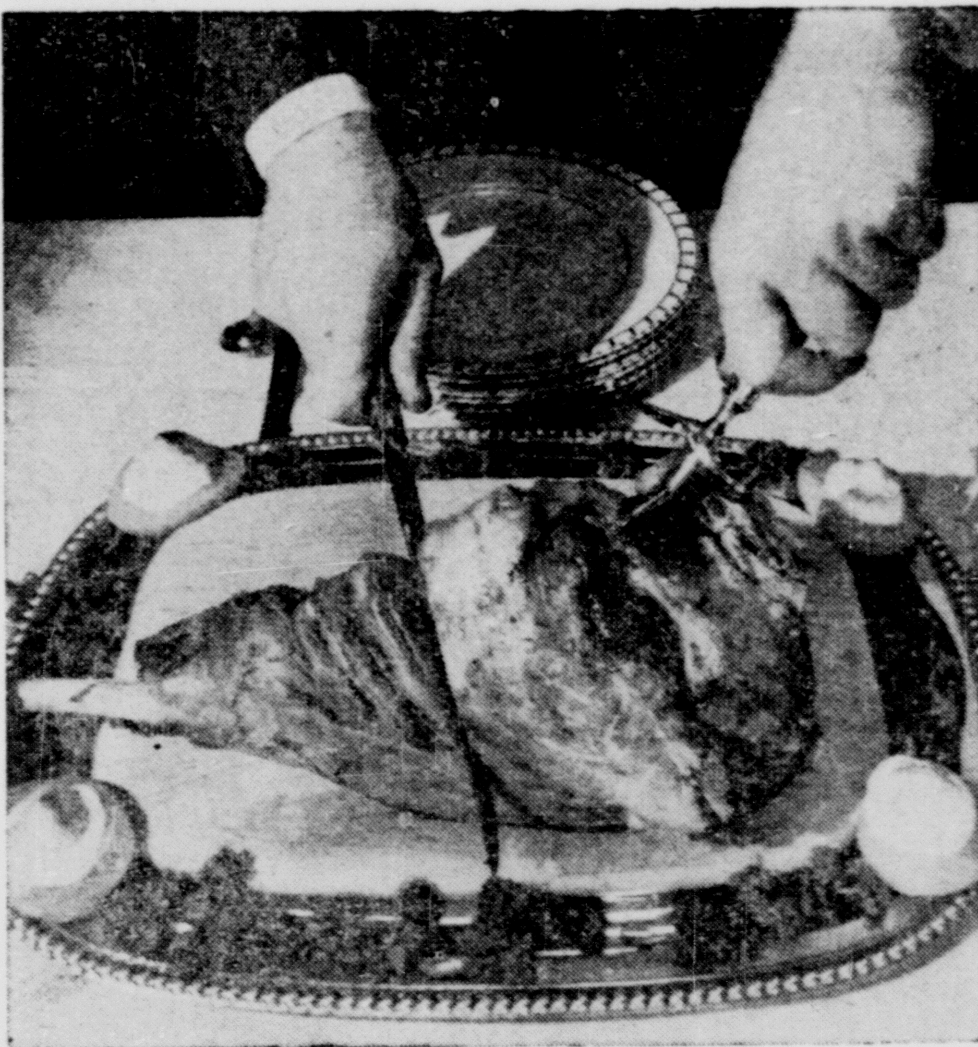

Extra calories, not the kind of food, add those extra unwanted pounds. For instance, the idea that bread is particularly fattening is wrong. Omitting bread from a reducing diet is unnecessary and increases the cost of the diet.

This was proved at a scientific study made at the University of Nebraska, in which 12 girls lost 230 pounds in 8 weeks on a diet which included enriched bread with butter or margarine at each meal.

Supper Snacks

For those of you who specialize in "little supper snacks," here are a few additional tricks to put up your sleeve. 1. Cover buttered toast with hot applesauce and top with crisp thin bacon slices. 2. Mix deviled ham with scrambled eggs while they are still slightly moist. Continue cooking until the eggs are the way you like them. 3. Spread toast with butter or margarine to which a little Worcestershire sauce has been added. Top with a grilled tomato slice and strips of bacon.

The Blakemore strawberry has proved itself to be best for Oklahoma conditions.

THIN, EVEN slices are being cut from this leg of lamb. Following the parallel slicing, the carver will run his sharp knife along the leg bone to release the slices. The peach halves topped with a minted meringue make an attractive garnish, yet one that will not interfere with carving.

How to Carve Leg of Lamb

Whether yours is a novice or an experienced carver, when he goes to work on a leg of lamb he'll thank you for these two things—for cooking the roast just right neither overcooked nor undercooked, and for lightly garnishing the platter.

For correct roasting of the leg of lamb, place it skin side down in an open roasting pan. Use a rack to hold the roast up out of its hot juices.

Another step important to carving is this. Let the roast "set" for 20 to 30 minutes following roasting. During this period outside the oven, the roast becomes more firm and is much easier for your carver to handle.

Here are some tips for the carver. Of course, a sharp knife is vital. Always steel the blade before beginning your work.

Have the roast leg placed on the platter so that the shank bone is to your right and the meaty section to your left. Stick the standard carving fork into the fatty section of the leg and carve 2 or 3 lengthwise slices from the side next to you.

Next, turn the roast so that it rests on the surface which you have just cut. The same as in carving ham, start cutting thin parallel slices from the shank end down to the bone. To release all the parallel cut slices, run the sharp knife along the leg bone.

Peach Halves With Mint Meringue
2 egg whites
½ cup mint jelly
8 to 10 peach halves

Beat egg whites until stiff. Add mint jelly and continue beating until well mixed. Place a large spoonful of mint meringue in each peach half and place in oven or broiler just long enough for the meringue to become lightly browned. Serve hot. 8 to 10 servings.

Deviled Lamb Chops

Lamb chops are considered deluxe for just about any occasion and need no special adornment. However, once in a while just for the sake of novelty, we like to give them a new styling. The trick is to spread the chops with a spicy sauce and broil them to bubbly goodness. Using shoulder lamb chops, this makes a relatively inexpensive dinner—and a marvelous tasting one!

Circus Epic Hides Stewart Face—But Not That Drawl

Actor James Stewart, the man with the linguistic shuffle and wry approach to dramatic exposition, says he knows a boyhood dream when it comes true. It's like this.

"Breathes there a man with soul so dead who doesn't want to play a clown," grinned the lanky star. "And that's only half of it. Think of being a clown in a Cecil DeMille picture. I not only would give my eye-teeth for that combination, I've given 'em."

Stewart plays the role of Cocoa the clown in DeMille's circus epic, "The Greatest Show On Earth," soon to be released with Betty Hutton in the feminine lead.

"I never take off my make-up so now I'm even with Harvey," says Jimmy whose boyhood dream will come true with a vengeance if the role pans out the way "C.B." has planned it.

Can't Hide Drawl

At no time does the mysterious clown remove his make-up, for reasons of his own, so at no time will the patrons see Stewart in the flesh. But concealing the famous Stewart drawl is like trying to hide the Taj Mahal under an umbrella.

The fact that the part of the clown is not as strong a role as those to be played by Cornel Wilde (as Sebastian the famous aerialist) and Charlton Heston (as Brad the circus manager), bothers Stewart no whit.

He really made a lot of concessions to play the part, re-arranging his film schedule on several points.

The role of Holly, trapeze artist and blonde enchantress who complicates several lives and nearly wrecks the circus, happens to be one of a half dozen important roles which have come to Betty Hutton in her film career.

Looking to Betty's career as a rags-to-riches musical comedy star and barn-stormer, with an eye to her volcanic and irrespressible technique, no part ever suited her better.

She displays the unbridled Hutton vitality in an arena which for the first time may be large enough to contain it—the "big top" of the Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey circus.

New Type of Movie Harmony Introduced

Because of its unusual theme, a study of the so-called "smartini set," "Strike a Match," to be produced by Jerry Wald and Norman Krasna, will introduce a new type of movie music.

The score will be ultra-sophisticated, with sound effects combining with the music. To obtain the desired results, the producers are interviewing scores of extremist musicians and arrangers.

Diamond Jim Moran Now Wears Sparklers in Teeth

NEW ORLEANS, La. — When historians of coming generations write stories about unusual characters who have lived in New Orleans' Vieux Carre (Old Quarter) they won't find it necessary to go all the way back to the Jean Lafitte and Dominique You period to get all of them.

They can get a few right out of circa 1951, one in particular—Diamond Jimmy Moran, the restaurateur.

For Jim Moran, who operates the famous cafe on St. Louis Street, is one of the most colorful figures ever to walk the cobble stones of the old French Quarter.

And Jimmy has just added a new touch of brilliance to his makeup. He has had some of his front teeth set in sparkling diamonds, thus making his well-known smile one of the brightest in the district.

Mr. Moran already was a sparkling guy. Diamonds have been his trademark. He wears them strung down his tie, in his collar pin, on his fingers. They even encrust his spectacles, adding contrast to the magnificent emeralds he wears in his cuff links.

He was worth a lot of money on the hoof (about $100,000 worth) even before he took on the diamond-studded teeth the other day.

Moran started his career as a bootblack, shining shoes outside the doors of the restaurant he now owns. Former rum runner, slot machine impressario, he was once a bodyguard for Kingfish Huey Long, and that's how he got interested in food — cooking up dishes for Huey.

But with all his shining elegance Jimmy isn't afraid to move freely in the Quarter, because as he says: "This is my home, pal, and I'm not afraid of robbers. But I sorta stay out of the elite uptown sections. I'm a little nervous about going up there with all this ice on me."

Hollywood's Greatest Hunt For Talent Ends in Alley

Hollywood's greatest talent hunt a decade has ended with the signing by William Perlberg and George Seaton of Orangey Murray, a foul-tempered, overweight, scar-faced purebred alley cat to co-star with Ray Milland and Jan Sterling in the title role of "Rhubarb."

The hilarious tale of a puss bequeathed $30,000,000 and a major league team by an eccentric millionaire is now before the cameras at Paramount.

Orangey, an 18-pound fighter, was selected after Perlberg and Seaton had personally seen over 500 cats and investigated over 3,000 letters from cat owners across the English speaking world. Like other stars, he'll have his own stand-in for the film.

The cat, homeless and ill, wandered into the garden of Mrs. Agnes Murray, Sherman Oaks, California, two and a half years ago. Mrs. Murray fed it and nursed it back to health and Orangey thereupon adopted the family and refused to leave.

However, its affections are limited to the Murrays—it snarls and spits at the approach of anyone else and has been used as a sort of watchdog cat by the family. When

Mrs. Murray noticed Perlberg and Seaton were seeking a cat to play Rhubarb, she phoned them at Paramount and an interview was arranged.

Based upon H. Allen Smith's best seller, "Rhubarb" is directed by Arthur Lubin, who made the sensationally successful "Frances," story of a talking mule.

High School Pupils Advise Film Moguls

Four high school students have been hired as technical advisers for "On The Loose," cinema tale of teen-agers and their problems which Filmakers is producing with Joan Evans, Melvyn Douglas and Lynn Bari.

The youngsters are Marilyn Hendrickson and Hugh Lester from Hollywood High School, Bobette Bentley and Vance Gillespie from Los Angeles High School.

The four young people were added to the Filmakers production staff before filming started, and sat in on all story conferences with Producer Collier Young and Director Charles Lederer.

Additions for the Western Library—

Grim Frontier Tales Retold in New Book

A book that will be of interest to all historically-minded Southwesterners is C. L. Sonnichsen's "I'll Die Before I Run," a lusty account of gunplay and violence on the old frontier, and a full story of the great feuds carried on by the Texas pioneers.

Here is the story of men who would brand anything with a hide on, from a tamborine to a buffalo, and who stood up "for their rights" at the point of a gun.

The book has its beginning in the early 1840s, when the word "cowboy" gave off a heavy odor of wildness and sin, and when most settlers carried the law in their own hands—or, at least, in their holsters.

Here is chronicled the gang wars, pistols fights, ambushings, vigilante doings and blood feuds between families that continued well into the memory of Southwesterners who are alive today.

Among feuds dealt with you'll find the Regulators and Moderators of East Texas, the famed Taylor-Sutton affair, the Lee-Peacock troubles, and the fracas between the Jaybirds and the Woodpeckers.

There's blood and thunder to spare in this volume. It's the story of rugged individualists who fought and died—but never ran.

It is published by Harper & Bros., New York, at $3.50.

LIFE IN FAR WEST UNDER NEW COVERS

A book which has been described as the peer of Mark Twain's classic "Tom Sawyer" and "Huckleberry Finn" is again available to American readers, a century after its first appearance in 1848... It is

George Frederick Buxton's Life in the Far West, an account of pure adventure among the mountain men, fur traders, and trappers of the West before settlement.

It's a companion volume for "Ruxton of the Rockies," recently published by the O. U. Press.

A Restless Race

Often used as the basis for novels and other fictional writings, "Life in the Far West" remains the most vivid account, and perhaps the most authentic, dealing with the restless men who made the American fur trade great. The new edition by the well-known Colorado historian, LeRoy R. Hafen, contains a foreword by Mae Reed Porter, discoverer of much new material on Ruxton.

Although he was an Englishman, Ruxton considered the American West his home. He personally lived the life of his heroes, traversing much of the wilderness country beyond St. Louis, jumping-off point for the Indian domain beyond.

Hardy Trappers

Through two hardy trappers, Killbuck and La Bonte, he describes the events of the times. In their own language, he relates savage hand-to-hand battles with Indians, periods of near-starvation followed by feasts on such wilderness culinary delights as buffalo "boudins" and beaver tails, and passionate Mexican fandangos and drinking parties when mountain men gathered for a rendezvous in New Mexico to dispose of their furs.

Ruxton died in St. Louis in 1848 just before he was to start on another expedition to his beloved Rockies. Had he lived to write more, it is likely that his name would have been attached to a city, a state, or even a national monument. As it is, the "father of Westerns" is buried in an unmarked grave in St. Louis.

Ad Got Results—And How!

STOCKDALE, TEX.—Dan C. Crider had no idea of the results he would be getting when he placed a want ad in the Stockdale Star in an attempt to get an old-fashioned coffee grinder.

He got his grinder right away but he hadn't figured on the Star, through error, running the ad for 17 weeks. Now Dan has more coffee grinders than he can haul in a truck.

"I didn't know there were so many of the things in the world," he told the editor when he called to ask that the ad be pulled—pronto.

Dark and Handsome Isn't So Important, but Be Tall

DENTON, Tex.—Only one of the "ideal man" qualifications reminiscent of the Rudolph Valentino, "tall, dark, and handsome," days remains.

College girls, at least those at North Texas State College, still like height, but their dream man is not necessarily dark or handsome.

In a poll of 100 women on the NTSC campus, the majority indicated that personality and abilities are more important than looks. Thirty-seven girls rated good mixers and conversationalists as ideal.

Skilled dancing partners are in demand, while high intelligence, versatility, and ability to succeed at a given task were frequently mentioned as desirable.

Asked to list the occupation of men they date, 73 of the coeds placed collegians first. Thirty-four go with home-town friends also, and 12 date service men regularly. Age preference ranged from 18 to 30 years. Most wanted a man the woman's age or older.

Navy Holds Fashion's Spotlight

Navy, as certain a part of spring as the first yellow daffodil, is the favored color among 38 Mollie Parnis designs shown in New York the other day by De Pinna.

Now solidly on its own, now set with white in minutely checked taffeta, navy made a particularly fresh bid for attention in silk crepes and taffetas daubed with pastels.

A two-piece dress of navy, pink and black taffeta endowed the new snug waist and full skirt mode with the sweetness of a schoolgirl. More mature, but no less feminine, was a dress and jacket ensemble done in a silk flower print with a navy ground.

For Variety

As much as she may love the color, no woman is likely to have an all-navy wardrobe. So the balance of the outfits turned to other shades for charm of a spring afternoon or evening.

A soft but purposeful tone of coral appeared in a semi-shirt-waist dress of silk honan. With flaring fullness in the front of the skirt and trim cap sleeves, this dress gave promise of smart casualness for both spring and summer. It was shown with its own hat of matching honan.

Red, sometimes mingled with black in the dye vat, made a surprise entry with a selection of silk print afternoon dresses. Regardless of color, most of the prints were wisely small in figure pattern.

Their necklines, hip peplums or cross drapes were frequently edged in black velvet, a sometimes successful guard against the "old" look customarily associated with dark print dresses.

Afternoon and Evening

For both late afternoon chic and the whispering magic of an early summer evening, the showing suggested subdued tones of gray.

A snug-bodied cocktail party dress of gray taffeta favored the new gathered skirt idiom to the point of puffy shirring at both the waist and hem.

Singing a more idyllic melody, a gray shepherdess dress of chiffon chambray showed width above the waist in a cowl collar of white or gandy and below the waist in a skirt both gathered and flaring.

Milk in Frozen Storage Coming

How would you like to buy milk the way you buy frozen orange juice?

Latest experiments show that it is possible to produce frozen concentrated milk that will remain good for drinking several months after it goes into storage, the U. S. Department of Agriculture reports.

Advantages of such a product over whole milk would be the saving in storage space, both in home refrigerators and other storage points, a greater variety of uses, and a longer keeping time.

Also, it would be another means of preserving milk from a period of surplus production to one of scarcity. This would help keep prices more stable to dairymen as well as to consumers.

Ready to Take Off

Mrs. Olive Wakeman is a secretary who keeps three suitcases packed, one filled with winter clothing, one with tropical-resort wear, and one with cocktail and evening dresses. She is secretary to Conrad Hilton, president of fourteen hotels. For eight years, Mrs. Wakeman has been trailing Hilton over most of the Western Hemisphere, never knowing when she leaves for work in the morning whether she'll wind up that night in Washington, New York, Mexico City, or Bermuda.

Skillful Combination In Accessories Is Important

The exact matching of accessories is a matter of pride to many women, who spend hours finding shoes with a grain to match their purses, or locating gloves the precise finish of a belt.

In many cases, this energy could be used to better advantages since it's often the skillful combination of tastefully varied textures that give a look of style and individuality to a costume.

Choose Carefully

This doesn't mean you should strive for a hodge-podge of leathers, furs, felts and fabrics.

But it does mean that polished calf shoes and handbags don't necessarily call for kid gloves. The dull finish of suede, doeskin or fabric offers an interesting contrast.

It means, too, that a satin gown tends to lose its sleek effectiveness when combined with a satin purse, hat and gloves. The substitution of velvet or another soft, non-gleaming fabric somewhere in the accessory picture would be a wise move.

Colors Mix Too

Nor, on the other hand, should everything in an ensemble be wooly, rough or nubby. It's for this reason that a polished leather belt is often more interesting than a self-fabric one when your outfit is made up of tweed, felt and suede.

ICE CREAM FALLS OFF

Although it's a good idea to approach the mixing of colors with caution, the same general rule prevails here. Rather than matching your dark-brown shoes and bag with chocolate gloves, try a butterscotch shade instead.

Noah Rose Was Cameraman For Southwest's Frontier

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. — Noah Hamilton Rose is one of the world's most famous photographers—because nowhere in the world of sepia and shadow is there another exactly like him.

Noah Rose, who has just started his 78th year in Texas, is the last remaining cameraman of the old frontier—the archivist of the outlaw and gunfighter—and his collection of old-time western photographs, which he keeps in his home at 4014 W. Houston St., is distinctive unto itself.

He has more than 3000 negatives—some that he took himself, others that he collected and preserved while wandering over the state in the 1880s and 1890s.

Born In 1874

He is known to nearly every writer of Western lore, because it has been the rule that only from the N. H. Rose Collection could they obtain pictures of the characters about whom they write.

The dean of Southwestern photographers was born in Kendall county, Texas, in April 1874; and by the time he was 12 he was hand setting type on the old Menardville Monitor at a salary of $2 a month. He was also 'teaching' typesetting to a young friend, Marvin Hunter, now the well-known Texas historian of Bandera.

It was about this time that young Noah became interested in photography and he started out with a tin camera he obtained by selling subscriptions to the Youth's Companion.

Studio In Tent

The hobby fascinated him, and soon he was playing hookey from work to take pictures of hangings, shootings and other social events of the time. He set type on the Ballinger Banner in 1889, and during the '90s he worked on papers in Mason, Sonora, Del Rio, Eagle Pass and other West Texas towns.

But he never deserted his hobby. At intervals he would take time off from printing to travel over West Texas as a tent photographer with a bulb-action camera, 'shooting' cowboys, rangers, country weddings and what-not. And during this time he developed the art of making excellent prints from faded ancient photos and tin-types—which started his now famous collection and brought him to San Antonio to set up business in 1921.

During his tent-photography excursions Mr. Rose found himself extremely popular because of a new-fangled contraption he carried in his trunk—a big-horned Victor talking machine.

Held 'Concerts'

"It was the first one seen in many of the towns," he recalled the other day, "and I had 50 records, mostly on the funny side, that delighted everyone who heard them. That talking machine really brought me and my business into the limelight in those early days."

One time, at Eagle Pass, the manager of the Maverick Hotel got Mr. Rose to set up the Victor in a hotel window, and the photographer recalls that his 'concerts' filled the street with people every evening for several weeks. He nearly wore out the 50 records.

"When I was working country places like Sabinal and Frio Canyon," said Mr. Rose, "people would ask me to bring the Victor to their homes, and then they would call in all the neighbors for a party. Later I had people tell me they could hear that talking machine as far away as a mile down the canyons at night."

New Book Coming

During the last few years hard luck has pursued the state's most famous photographer. His home was flooded and many of his precious negatives were water-soaked.

Then, just as he had moved into a new home, and all seemed right with the world, his wife fell sick and died. Mr. Rose's grief resulted in a stroke which kept him abed for some time, but now he is up and about again.

Right now he's looking forward to the fulfillment of a long-cherished dream—publication of a book to be called 'The Album of Gunfighters', which will contain more than 300 of the famous Rose pictures.

Collaborating with him in the work is his friend Marvin Hunter of Bandera—the lad he taught to set type back in 1888.

50 Years of Medicine Sees Life Span Upped 19 Years

A fifty-year renewal of its charter has been granted the State Medical Association of Texas, first chartered by the State on May 1, 1901.

The doctors of medicine in Texas first banded together in 1853 to further the causes of scientific medicine and to develop better health laws and practices.

By 1901, organization was sufficiently complete to justify a charter, and now, as the first charter expires, the Association has active members in every county.

The half century between the two documents, the first signed by five distinguished pioneer Texas doctors, all now deceased, and the second, submitted by the present officers of the 6,000 members association, is measured by amazing strides in the alleviation of human suffering and a startling lengthening of human life.

Dr. W. M. Gambrell, Austin, president of the Association, points to a record which no other nation in the history of the world has ever matched.

The first fifty years has seen your life-span lengthen 19 years; it has seen typhoid and diphtheria practically wiped out as killers; it has seen the three once great killers of children—whooping cough, diphtheria, and scarlet fever—practically eliminated.

It has seen the discovery of the sulfa drugs and the advent of the wonder "antibiotics" such as penicillin, aureomycin and others, whose multifold uses are still being explored.

In 1900, according to Dr. Gambrell, the average span of life was 49 years. Today, it is a little better than 68 years. If the trend holds, it adds another year to your life every 20 months of medical research, and conceivably by 1975, the life span could reach 90.

It takes from 300 to 1,000 years to build an inch of topsoil under natural conditions.

Pioneers Cooks Dinner For 81st Birthday

FARWELL, Tex.—Although he is 81, Uncle Tom Randol doesn't ask anybody to cook his birthday dinners for him. He prefers to cook his own.

The dinner he turned out the other day when he passed his 81st milestone consisted of pork sausage, green beans, potatoes, candied yams, blackberry pie and old-fashioned pound cake topped with peaches.

The Panhandle pioneer had guests from both sides of the Texas-New Mexico line.

Announcing: A New Service For Handwriting Analysis

(Editor's Note: The Southwest Magazine this month starts a new service for its readers—a column in which a famous handwriting expert, M. N. Bunker, will analyze your penmanship and give you the answers he finds. Here is the first of Mr. Bunker's columns:

BY M. N. BUNKER
Grapho-Analysis Expert

When I first heard that handwriting reveals your personality, your good and bad points, even the kind of food you like, I laughed at the idea. I was going to be an expert penman, but instead of writing a copybook style I failed. My teachers would shake their heads in disgust because I kept putting a lot of strokes that did not belong there.

I set out to find the reason I put in those extra strokes, and after twenty years I found I had something. Handwriting does tell the truth about the writer. If he is honest, talented, a constant lover or a fly-by-night who loves today and is gone tomorrow. It tells how you think, even the kind of food you will prefer.

In countless cases I have seen the truth revealed by handwriting help people find love, happiness, and success in life. What your writing says is impartial.

Every letter you make — even your dots and dashes, tell something about you, and in many cases these truths taken from handwriting help the writer to get a new view of himself. Take this young lady who writes:

"I am very much in love with the young man whose letter I am sending you, but don't know what to do. Will he make a good husband and does he love me? What do you think?"

All I know is what his handwriting tells about him. He is vain, selfish, likes to attract favorable attention—quite a showman at heart. Undoubtedly when he is away from you he is basking in the smiles of some other girl, not because he is untrue to you, but because he likes flattery — —and good food. Your mother is probably a good cook, and he likes her cooking. He is talented, capable of making a real place for himself, but he is not in love with anyone except himself. A good friend, but — you must make your own decision. This is what his writing reveals about him.

Your writing reveals your weaknesses and good points just as clearly as this specimen shows the young man's real nature. You may write a miserable scrawl, or a copy book hand. This is not important, for every stroke you make tells something about you.

For your own analysis, merely write a few lines. Send as many specimens as you wish, and enclose 25c and stamped reply envelope for each analysis. Address, M. N. Bunker, care Southwest Magazine, 715 Jones St., Ft. Worth, Texas.

April Holiday Is Famed For Battle—and Eggnog

This month, on the 21st, the Lone Star flag will be flying on public buildings all over Texas in commemoration of the 118th anniversary of the Battle of San Jacinto, where early Texans won independence from Mexico, but—

The same day also will mark the 108th anniversary of another momentous occasion—an eggnog party the like of which probably has not been equalled anywhere on or out of the pages of history, a party that was held in honor of the aforementioned San Jacinto victory.

The eggnog affair took place in the vermin-infested Perote Castle near Mexico City where 75 Texas patriots were facing an uncertain future as prisoners of the Mexican Central government.

Men Caught at Mier

They were men who had been captured in 1842 while making a somewhat foolhardy raid against Mier, Mexico in retaliation for a Mexican attack on San Antonio, Texas—an attack which the Mexicans had made, in turn, to retaliate for an expedition the Texans had sent out for the purpose of taking Santa Fe, New Mexico, from the Mexicans.

It was the custom in those days, just as it is now, for people to celebrate momentous occasion with plenty of eggnog; and as April 21, 1843 approached the Texan prisoners at Perote asked their warden for permission to stage the party—which, they told him, was to be in honor of a Texas 'Saint's Day.'

Mescal and 'Mule' Milk

The Mexican commandant, apparently a dense fellow who had forgotten the significance of April 21, gave his consent. He even went so far as to furnish the main ingredient for the nog—30 gallons of mescal, that highly potent liquor produced by the maguey cactus.

Colonel Thomas Jefferson Green, one of the leaders of the ill-fated Mier expedition, was appointed mixer of the nog, and after stirring 30 dozen eggs and a big loaf of brown sugar into the 30 gallons of mescal, he suddenly realized that since there were no cows in the vicinity of the prison he lacked one of the main ingredients—milk.

But that didn't stop the Texans. There was a big bunch of jennets (or 'jennies') at the prison, and the Texans, after milking dozens of these long-eared little animals, managed to get 20 or more gallons of milk to mix with the mescal.

Party a Great Success

Historical documents, both Mexican and Texan, record the party as a great success.

A diary kept by Colonel Green relates how the prisoners sang far into the night to the accompaniment of the pounding of chains on the hard stones of the prison floor, and how their jailors broke up the party only when the Texans quit singing and began imitating hoot owls.

Even some of the Mexicans joined in the festivities, not realizing until too late that they were helping their prisoners celebrate a military victory in which they had been the losers.

New Mexico Once Covered Big Section of Outdoors

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M.—Let's face it. The State of New Mexico is something like the Old Gray Mare — she ain't what she used to be.

Rare maps at the University of New Mexico show that not only did New Mexico once include most of Arizona, but a portion of Utah as well. The state's borders extended to California on the west and to the Gadsden Purchase titled "Arrizona" on the south.

Part of a collection of rare maps at the library, the maps date as far back as one made in Paris in 1682 to the present.

The largest collection in the state, they show old wagon trails, proposed railroad routes, settlements, and United States army posts.

Some of the maps have been donated to the library, but most of them were purchased from the Argosy Book and Map store of New York City. The collection is used for research purposes and to assist faculty members in studies and preparations in writing histories of the state.

One of the maps shows New Mexico extending to a territory known as "New France," now called Canada. Another has the state covering most of the Southwest.

Most of the maps were made by surveyors for the General Land Grant office, showing land grants, Indian reservations, and military areas.

The maps range in size from two or three feet square down to three or four inches.

LESS FLOUR NOW

In 1909, on an average, every man, woman and child in the United States used 203 lbs. of wheat flour. Today this has decreased to 129 lbs per capita.

Spring brings the annual roundup of the 'novilla grandes' (the big steers) in the Mexican border country of the Southwest—with the big herds being corraled in railroad shipping pens to start the journey to the grasslands of Oklahoma and Kansas. Picture shows vaqueros bringing in a herd to a shipping pen near Uvalde, Texas.

Southwestern Vignettes

John W. DeVine, conductor of the Here and There column in the Six Points News at Corpus Christi, Tex., believes in fair play, as attested by this item:

"Note to Tom Collins, Tulsa, Okla., representative at Oklahoma City, who wants to put an Indian head on the car licenses of that state: Just because the white man took Oklahoma away from the Red Man, is that any reason to revert to the old heathen custom of hanging his head where everybody can see it?"

Paul Tooley, in the Hot Springs (N.M.) Herald, says he has a friend who is earning more than he is spending because he is a shoemaker by day and a bartender by night. Paul comments:

"Perhaps you can say he saves soles by day and lifts souls by night."

For three months the Bishop (Tex.) News carried a 'Rain Wanted' ad in its columns, but finally dropped it out when it appeared that the clouds weren't interested.

The Socorro (N.M.) Chieftain wonders where Cupid is hiding. In a recent issue the Chieftain carried the following item:

"There was not a single wedding nor a license to marry in Socorro or Socorro county this week. This is a new record of some kind and is the first week that anyone seems able to remember when there was a complete standstill in all marriage activities.

The Gonzales (Tex.) Inquirer carried this headline over a story from the town of Waelder: "Truth Seekers Entertain Husband."

The Bastrop (La.) Clarion is still wondering about those peals of thunder heard in February. G. B. Herring, Jr., in his Over the Editor's Desk column, speculates a little, thusly:

"Seems we are having an early spring — well, a little early anyway. We hear farm folks are predicting that April will be a cold month, though. They base their arguments on an old superstition that 'for every day it thunders in February, there will be frost in April.' Hmmm. Well we hope not."

Bob Ingraham let this one slip through in the Silver City (N.M.) Enterprise:

"No governor in many years has been able to love on the salary paid him."

And the Tucumcari (N.M.) Daily News recently contributed this forecast of things to come:

"Judge Armijo indicated that his decision may be excepted sometime in April."

Today there is a greater need for a well-rounded knowledge of agriculture than ever before in the history of the United States.

Outdoor Notes For Sportsmen

By JOE AUSTELL SMALL

If you're worried about the live bait situation, but are still catfish hungry, bend your good ear agin' the wind and listen:

Mix 1 cup flour, 1 cup corn meal and 10 tablespoonsful of thick molasses. Mix into stiff dough and roll into bait balls. Drop into boiling water Boil ten minutes. Remove and drop into cold water. This is a sweet-tooth catfish bait and it stays on the hook.

Your skillet will smell fishy if you give this bait a good try.

For He who Kicks

Audley C. Hawkins, of Lincoln, Illinois, was so disgusted when he reeled in a pair of old trousers that he gave the pants a scornful kick. He got a stab in the foot. A ten-inch catfish was inside the pants!

How to Catch Frogs

Ever go fishing for frogs? By golly, it's sport — and frog legs in the skillet is your reward. A very small snelled hook, baited with a strip of red cloth or yarn, is a sure-fire frog-getter. Also, a small wriggly worm or a dragonfly will work beautifully. Just lower the bait in front of the frog and you'll have quick action. How to get that close to him? Well, you've got to have something to worry about, Haven't you?

Grim Note To Duck Stealer

GALVESTON, Texas—Note to the thief who stole two Pekin ducks from the University of Texas Medical School here:

Those birds, bud, probably tasted just like any other ducks if you cooked them, but—

For many months before you stole them they had been fed cancer-producing substances as part of an experiment! Well...?

Bears are Coming Back to Oklahoma

Bruin is coming back to Oklahoma.

Seeking to restore the black bear to some of their former haunts in southeast Oklahoma, the Game and Fish Department is seeking the aid of the state of Washington.

And Washington officials have promised Kelly DeBusk, Oklahoma game director, that they will supply from a dozen to two dozen black bear cubs for transplanting this Spring.

Don W. Clarke, director of the Washington Department of Game, recently wrote Mr. DeBusk:

"I am sure we can supply the cubs so they can be raised by bottle for a certain period and then turned loose in the desired area."

It is planned to turn the animals loose in the Robbers Cave State Park, in Latimer county of Southeastern Oklahoma.

Camp Kinks

Before you leave camp, pour water on your campfire and cover it with dirt.

Butter, lard and other perishable foods can be kept a long time if sunk in a spring or stream in tightly closed mason jars.

To prevent coffee from boiling over on the campfire, lay a green twig across the top of the coffee pail.

Powdered milk and powdered coffee are light to pack and are easily and quickly made in camp.

Seeing the sights

When it is necessary to shoot in the dark, wet the top of your rifle barrel and the sights can then be seen more easily due to the moisture reflecting light of the moon and stars.

Champion Rifle Marksman Retires at 82, Undefeated

SAN ANTONIO, Tex.—A. Toepperwein, one of the shootin'est men the world has ever seen, has gone into retirement at the age of 82 after reigning as king of rifle marksmen for more than 60 years.

Toepperwein, who toured the country for many years putting on exhibitions for Winchester, was a cartoonists for the San Antonio Express at the turn of the century, and even then he was renowned as a sharpshooter.

He became nationally famous in 1906 when he broke 72,491 aerial targets out of 72,500, breaking the former world record held by Doc Carver with 60,000 out of 60,650.

It is estimated that during his career he fired in excess of three million rounds of ammunition in exhibitions.

Toepperwein's wife "Plinky," who died in 1945, also was a great marksman. She had never fired a rifle at the time she married the champion but within three weeks was shooting a piece of chalk from between her husband's fingers.

Once Mrs. Toepperwein broke 1952 clay pigeons out of 2000 in three hours and 15 minutes of shooting time.

Who will be the next champ nobody knows. Toepperwein's 1906 record still stands, unchallenged.
